Press Release

Art of Ping Pong x Jamel Armand + Gallery Hioco Delany

Art of Ping Pong is excited to announce a special collaboration with Dutch artist Jamel Armand to celebrate the launch of his first solo exhibition, Silk Song, at Gallery Hioco Delany.

Inspired by his son and his Indonesian roots, Jamel's work blends folk-inspired figures, ritualistic gestures, and global symbolism into a warm, intimate, and cross-cultural visual language.

Jamel Armand was drawn to collaborate with Art of Ping Pong because he loved the idea of art stepping beyond the canvas into everyday play. "Ping pong is rhythmic, fast, and about flow and connection," he says.

Working on the collection pushed him to think about durability, rhythm, and joy, as a table or paddle is touched and played with.

The designs draw from his SILK SONG exhibition, including the wolf motif symbolizing protection and kinship, bringing energy, guardianship, and playfulness to the game.

ArtNet Set

Our signature ping pong set and vibrant wall piece in one
€250 (tax included)

This limited-edition collaboration with Jamel Armand brings his graphic motifs, colours and rhythmic energy to our signature modular net system, creating an object that bridges design and play with effortless ease.

Crafted from powder-coated steel and mounted on a solid oak bracket, the three sculptural panels connect to form a striking divider for play — and hang beautifully on the wall between games.

Bold in colour and clean in form, the ArtNet transforms the everyday into something worth displaying. The three powder-coated sculptures transform any surface into a playable table in seconds. When you are finished playing, simply replace them on the wall to continue enjoying them as wall art.

Product Details

— The table dividers are made from powder coated bent steel
— Each piece is 403x150x67mm in size and weighs 565gm
— The wall bracket is handmade from solid oak

Includes:

— Three-piece table divider set

About Jamel Armand

The work of Jamel Armand is an ode to the purity and aesthetics of faded civilisations. His paintings are depictions of tribal people, capturing their spirits in his own loving and meaningful way.

Jamel senses a deep connection with his Indonesian roots and the tribes he might have belonged to in a past life. He is honouring them by painting their portraits, showing the beauty and pride they uphold despite their suffering.

About Gallery Hioco Delany

In 2023, Keith Hioco and Mark Delany decided to turn their shared passion for art into an art gallery. The pair created Gallery Hioco Delany: an exhibition space for emerging artists in the Volkstraat, Antwerp.

Hioco Delany has a clear goal in mind: becoming an accessible stepping stone in the thriving art scene of Antwerp for both new artist at the beginning of their career as for established artist who find it hard to find footing in the Belgian art scene. Risk-taking and transparency are therefore central to the operation of the gallery. The informal and accessible approach of the gallery also ensures that new -and often first-time- buyers are attracted to the market.

About Art of Ping Pong

Art of Ping Pong has a simple mission to make art more playful; fusing art with functional design, they create vibrant art objects to populate our living spaces. Their pieces also have a real-life purpose to encourage connection with others through conversation and play. Inspired by modern compact living and a need to seize every available source of joy, their wall-hanging ping pong tables, nets and bats seamlessly transform your space into an immediate playground. Art of Ping Pong collaborates with creatives, brands and designers alike who share the spirit of their world, and collaborators have included Yayoi Kusama, Nike, Mira Mikati, Javier Calleja, Malika Favre, The Hoxton and Pucci.
